Paper was a good start

Note taking and document analysis tools have changed little from the margin notes, highlighting, and sticky notes we have used forever. Most apps today try to duplicate paper, but, in spite of this, over 80% of knowledge workers still prefer paper at work and school.

LiquidText moves beyond paper. It captures your reading, notes, highlights, annotations and observations just like paper; but goes further to reveal their connections: to source materials and each other in a way which documents notes into ideas, and we connect your ideas into reports.

Gather and organize.

Every note, idea and observation can be connected to others, and a single tap can show those relationships and original context.
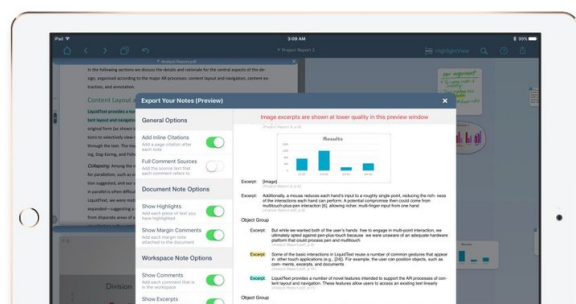

across pages and documents.

Looking for something in another part of your document? Just pinch and it comes together. Make connections between important information across pages and documents.

without losing context.

LiquidText's unique visualizations let you bring your highlights and search results together to see the bigger picture, but see the context of each of them with just a pinch.

Export and

After you organize your notes and excerpts, LiquidText can export them in standard formats (PDF and DOCx) so you can share and communicate your findings to others.

Skip the learning curve.

We know you're in a hurry. LiquidText has the simplicity to get you started
